COMPLETE PLANS FOR FIREMEN'S CONCLAVE HERE

1,500 Expected For Sessions Labor Day; Parade In Morning.

STRAND, PLACE OF SESSIONS

Plans have been completed for the ninth annual convention of the Adams County Firemen's association which will be held in Gettysburg on Labor Day, Monday, September 1. More than 1,500 firemen and an equal number of visitors from the sixteen other communities in Adams county which have volunteer fire departments are expected to come here for the occasion.

Following a business session at 9:45 o'clock in the Strand theater, Baltimore street, a parade will be staged at 11 o'clock. Dinner will be served at Little Round Top at noon, and during the afternoon and evening a bazaar will be held there, with dancing at Rosensteel's pavilion.

Morning Session
J. S. Brumgard, Littlestown banker, and president of the county firemen's association, will preside at the morning business session. Opening with the singing of "America" and an invocation by the Rev. Father P. J. Enright, of Bonneville, the convention will then hear Judge Donald P. McPherson, Gettysburg, give the address of welcome. The response will be given by B. A. Jacobs, burgess of East Berlin.

A feature of the morning meeting will be the presentation by President Brumgard of a portrait of Past President James B. Aumen, of Gettysburg, to the Gettysburg fire company. George A. McClellan, secretary of the local fire company, will accept the portrait. Mr. Aumen served as president of the Adams county firemen's association from its organization eight years ago until 1929.

Parade Line-Up
The parade will form on East Middle street, facing east, and cover the following route:

East Middle street to Liberty street, to York street, west on York street to center square, to Chambersburg street, to Franklin street, south on Franklin street to West Middle street, east on West Middle street to East Middle street, to engine house and disband.

William T. Timmins, Gettysburg, will be chief marshal of the parade with Horace Bender, Gettysburg, as assistant marshal. Seven bands and drum corps will be in the line of march. They include the Littlestown band, the Paradise Protectorate band, the New Oxford drum corps, the York Springs band, the East Berlin band, the Abbottstown drum corps and the Gettysburg Boys' band.

Most of the visiting fire companies will bring their apparatus with them for the parade. At present there are 19 pieces of motorized fire fighting equipment in Adams county.

Program Book
An attractive 120-page program of the firemen's convention has just come from The Gettysburg Times job printing department.

Besides J. S. Brumgard, president, other officers of the county association are seventeen vice presidents: Dr. T. C. Miller, Abbottstown; R. R. Criswell, Arendtsville; Dennis C. JAP BEETLES HIT BY DROUGHT

Millions Saved Farmers Through Checking Of Insect Pests.

Despite millions of dollars damage to crops which it has caused, the long summer drought of 1930 may prove to be a farmers' blessing in disguise.

As direct result of long weeks without rain, it is likely there will be no extension of the Japanese beetle quarantine zone in Adams county for 1931. It also is likely that the destructive Mexican bean beetle has been so nearly exterminated by the dry weather that it will be simple to control in the future after having defied all methods of control for the past six years.

Caused Losses
These two beetles alone have caused huge losses to farmers in recent years. If checked as result of the lack of rain, that feature of the drought in itself may recompense the farmers for their drought losses within a few years.

The drought has been more effective in combating the Japanese beetle than any spray or quarantine, according to Dr. T. L. Guyton, entomologist of the state department of agriculture. Scorching suns and lack of moisture have baked the ground too hard to permit the female beetle to deposit her eggs deeply enough to escape the killing heat of the drought. Usually the eggs are deposited two inches or more below the surface, so that sudden changes in temperature do not affect them. The eggs are placed from the middle of July during August.

Decrease Beetle
The effect may be to decrease the number of Japanese beetles except where lawns have been sprayed steadily, making the ground soft. Heavy rains during the balance of the month are expected to make little difference as most of the eggs have already been laid.

Because it is expected the drought's heat will have killed most of the eggs because they are too near the surface, the 1931 beetle population is expected to show a marked decline.

The burned condition of surface greens also is expected to retard the normal movement of the beetles. As result, it is expected that the number and movement of the beetles will have been so thoroughly restricted by the drought that the quarantined area need not be enlarged next year.

The Mexican bean beetle is believed to have suffered even a higher casualty rate than the Japanese beetle.

DEDICATE SPAN TO WAR HEROES

American Legion Parade Is Military Spectacle In Capital.

Harrisburg, Aug. 22 (AP).—Dedication of the soldiers and sailors memorial bridge, a great span at the rear of the state capitol which has been under construction for years, constituted the big event of today's session of the American Legion.

While the delegates to the 12th annual legion meeting were occupied with the business of electing minor officers and nominating candidates for the post of state commander, Hanford MacNider, United States minister to Canada, flew here from Washington to make the dedicatory address at the official opening of the bridge.

The dedication parade presented a military spectacle seldom seen in times of peace.

The $4,000,000 span is a memorial to all Pennsylvanians of the world war.

The Rev. W. E. Swoope, of Lebanon, today was elected chaplain on second ballot.

Robert J. Hanna, Philadelphia, was elected eastern vice commander.

WEATHER REPORT

Trapper Tells His Animal Experiences

Interesting experiences as a trapper and trapper of wild animals were recounted for members of Lions' clubs of Gettysburg, Waynesboro and Chambersburg at a joint meeting at Pen-Mar park, Thursday evening.

Dr. R. W. Harwood, of Pittsburgh, former animal trainer with the Hagenback-Wallace circus.

Mr. Harwood has trapped wild animals in Africa, India and elsewhere, and has had several narrow escapes from death. He said one of the most vicious of wild animals in Africa is the buffalo, one of which had him treed for almost two days before lions arrived and engaged in mortal combat with the buffalo.

About thirty members of the Gettysburg club attended the meeting.

Policeman's Wife Fined $200 For Liquor Sale at Taneytown

Mrs. Fanny Katz, Baltimore, Found Guilty In Trial At Westminster After Transaction On Taneytown Fair Grounds Last Week.

Mrs. Fanny Katz, of Baltimore, wife of Sgt. M. E. Katz, of the state police force, charged with selling intoxicating liquor at Taneytown in violation of the Carroll county local law, was convicted and fined $200 and costs by Police Justice George E. Benson, Westminster, Thursday afternoon.

Senator Harry O. Levin, Baltimore, and Dr. Eugene Walsh, Westminster, Mrs. Katz's attorneys, contended that she had not made the sale, but the magistrate justice rendered the verdict of guilty and imposed the fine.

Her attorneys entered an appeal, and Mrs. Katz gave bail of $500 for her appearance at the November term of the Circuit Court for Carroll county.

State's Attorney Theodore F. Brown represented Maryland.

Mrs. Katz conducted a refreshment stand and lunch counter at the Carroll county fair, Taneytown, last week. On Friday Sheriff George C. Fowble, according to the testimony, received a tip that intoxicating liquor was being sold at the stand.

Sheriff Fowble and Deputy Sheriffs Lee Crammer and Ralph Warehime testified that Crammer gave Russell Zile, a young farmer of near Union Bridge, $2 to make a buy, and that Charles Lowe, Spring Mills, accompanied Zile to make the purchase.

The officers said they searched both men before they went to the stand and that they had no liquor. They said they watched the pair go to the stand and saw a package handed to Zile.

Paid $125, Testified
Zile and Lowe testified that when they got to the stand a man named Sprigg Senseney was there with Mrs. Katz. They said they spoke to Senseney in her hearing, that she reached under the counter, got out a package wrapped in newspaper and handed it to Senseney, who passed it to Zile, who paid Senseney $125. Senseney, it was testified, gave the money to Mrs. Katz, while Zile delivered the package containing two pop bottles filled with a pint of what the sheriff testified was corn whisky, to Lowe, who carried it openly to Sheriff Fowble.

Last of Feudists Dies Peacefully in Hospital

Baltimore, Aug. 22 (AP).—William Anderson Hatfield, known as the last of the Hatfield-McCoy feudists, of West Virginia and Kentucky, died today at a hospital here at the age of 67.

Hatfield was brought here from his Logan, West Virginia, home suffering from a brain ailment that had no connection with a wound sustained in the long feud war of a half century ago, in which several score lost their lives.

His father, Anderson Hatfield, known as Devil Anse, died in 1921, past 80. Cap Hatfield was a large, powerful man of picturesque type. He once confided to friends that many of his oldtime foes believed that he had a charmed life, he guessed that he was shot at about 300 times during the mountain warfare and was wounded but once.

AGENT ADVISES SOWING WINTER BARLEY AS FEED

Believes It Will Aid Corn Shortage Next Summer In County.

YIELD BETTER THAN WHEAT

With lower prices for wheat in effect Adams county farmers are being urged by M. T. Hartman, farm agent, to consider the raising of winter barley, which serves not only as a dairy feed but the land on which it is sown can later be used as a place to sow clover.

"Northern Maryland farmers have been experimenting with winter barley," Mr. Hartman said today, "and the acreage and popularity of the crop there have been increasing very rapidly."

"Yields normally run from 30 to 40 bushels an acre, where wheat made 20 to 25 bushels. Some Maryland farmers have substituted barley for wheat altogether. Winter barley also has been grown in Pennsylvania, particularly in Franklin county. Yields the past season have been exceptionally high, commonly running as high as 45 and 50 bushels while several reported over 60 bushels."

Good Production

"In a test in York county, winter barley made 45 bushels per acre or 2160 pounds, while wheat beside it yielded 33 bushels or 1980 pounds. Barley would make a good supply of feed by midsummer which will be particularly welcome next season in sections where this year's corn crop is a complete or partial failure."

"Barley can be substituted for corn to advantage for all kinds of livestock and poultry. The barley analyzes 9 per cent protein and 79.4 per cent digestible nutrients, compared with 7.5 per cent and 85.7 per cent respectively for corn. Barley is higher in protein which is the greatest need in dairy feed."

"Those who have fed barley are enthusiastic and are extremely reluctant to sell any for seed. Barley does not make as much straw as wheat and the straw is not quite as good for bedding, but it is satisfactory. Clover seedlings in barley should have a better chance than in wheat, since barley is harvested and off the ground nearly two weeks earlier."

"Just how far north winter barley can be grown safely is not known. It is considerably more subject to winter killing than is wheat. Outside the southern tier of counties east of the Alleghenies, it would certainly be an experiment. "In order to get a good top before winter, barley should be sown about two weeks before the best date for sowing wheat. Two bushels per acre is the common rate of seeding. Although there is a beardless variety it does not seem to yield as well, is less hardy, shatters much worse than the common bearded variety. "Smuts were extremely prevalent in winter barley this summer, so that some of the seed will be badly infected. As a safety measure some control treatment should be given all seed sown this fall."

Solve Mystery Of Missing Balloonist

Oslo, Norway, Aug. 22 (AP).—A thirty-three-year-old mystery of the Arctic has been solved by the finding on White Island of the body of the Swedish balloonist-explorer, August Andree, by a Norwegian scientific expedition.

Andree took off in a balloon from Spitzbergen in July, 1897, intending to travel to the North Pole. He and his two companions never had been seen or heard of again. The expedition which found Andree's body also reported the finding of the body of one of his companions. Both were fully dressed and well preserved.

At least these two men got safely to earth from the balloon. Indications were that Andree survived his companions and made a desperate attempt to live.

MOORE IS HELD ON NEW CHARGE

New Oxford Driver Is Arrested For Driving While Drunk.

Already charged with involuntary manslaughter and failing to stop and render assistance after an accident, Lewis E. Moore, 20, of New Oxford, now faces a third charge, that of operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor. He was arrested on the latest charge by Constable George Aughinbaugh, Thursday evening, and posted $500 bail before Justice of the Peace W. D. Myers, New Oxford, for his appearance at a hearing before Justice of the Peace John C. Shealer here next Monday evening at 7:30 o'clock.

Result of Inquest
The latest charge was preferred by Corporal R. G. Schwartz, of the local sub-station of the state highway motor patrol, as a result of testimony taken at a coroner's inquest, Wednesday, into the death of Harry C. Thompson, 45, Gettysburg R. 5, who is alleged to have been struck and instantly killed by Moore's car on the Lincoln Highway, near New Oxford, early last Sunday morning.

Roy Smith, Mt. Misery, testified at the inquest that both he and Moore drank at least six bottles of beer each Saturday night, and that Moore was driving the car when it struck an object on the highway near New Oxford.

The coroner's jury returned a verdict, in effect, that Moore's car struck and killed Thompson while the driver was under the influence of liquor.

STOCK REPORT

New York, Aug. 22 (AP).—The latest bear drive against stocks failed in today's market as it found itself up against a stone wall of speculative apathy. During the morning, however, bears depressed some of the copper rails and special ties to new low levels. Pivotal industries were generally firm.

Senate Nomination Cost Neely 42 Cents

Charleston, W. Va., Aug. 22 (AP).—The Democratic nomination for United States senator from West Virginia cost former Senator M. M. Neely, of Fairmont, more than the fourteen cents he previously reported. It cost him forty-two cents.

Neely, who was unopposed for the nomination, reported the fourteen-cent expenditure to the Secretary of the United States senate and the Secretary of State of West Virginia. That cost him something he had not reckoned in his previous account. He straightened up the matter in a pro-primary expense account filed yesterday, and it was forty-two cents "paid to the United States post office at Fairmont, W. Va."

MOTHER TO QUIT MRS. M'PHERSON

She Will Not Go Back To Temple After Recovery.

Los Angeles, Aug. 22 (AP).—With Aimee Semple McPherson planning to occupy her pulpit Sunday, despite her recent mysterious illness, Angelus Temple authorities are facing a definite break between the evangelist and her mother, Mrs. Minnie Kennedy.

The woman evangelist, terming herself "just a sick girl," has emphatically denied her mother's repeated assertions that she suffered a broken nose in a fist encounter with her daughter.

Mrs. Kennedy announced she would leave for the mountains as soon as discharged from the sanatorium, where she is under treatment.

The evangelist's mother said she might go to Olympia, Wash., where she recently dedicated a church. She declared she never would return to the temple as long as Mrs. McPherson's secretary, Mae Waldron, remained.

Hughes Warns States To Hold Fast to State Rights

Chicago, Aug. 23 (AP).—Charles Evans Hughes, chief of the United States, in an address before the annual convention of the American Bar association Thursday night, advised the states to resist encroachment upon their authority.

He also said the greatest need of the nation was improvement in the administration of justice, especially of criminal law.

The jurist's speech was designed to welcome to the meeting several scores of distinguished foreign visitors. It was broadcast over the NBC chain, through station WGN.

"Paradoxical as it may seem," he said, "not only the security but the efficiency of the union lies in the appropriate maintenance of the authority of the states within the proper spheres of local government and local policy."

President Grooms Children And Keeps Guests Waiting

Washington, Aug. 22 (AP).—President Hoover Thursday held up the reception of many callers to grant a special audience to Gertrude Ann and Billy Windsor, to see the executive and nearly lost out.

Gertrude, who is 11, with chestnut curls, and her brother, Billy, three years her junior, drove up to the White House with their parents. While the mother and father waited in the lobby, Gertrude and Billy went to see Secretary Akerson and gave him the following letter:

Dear President Hoover:
"Billy and I came all the way from Tyler, Texas, to see you, and now they tell us that we can't see you because the senators we know are away from Washington."

Sympathize With Him
"I don't blame you for not wanting to shake hands with so many people, but isn't there some way we could just see you before we leave? I am 11 and Billy is 8."

"We have begged mother and daddy for nearly a year to bring us here and I'm afraid we won't get to come back for a long, long time."

"With love from Gertrude Ann Windsor."

The president was shown the letter and immediately granted the children an interview and sent them away happy with autographed pictures of himself. Neither Gertrude nor Billy were shy when confronted by newspaper men.

Enjoyed It Fine
"We enjoyed it fine," the little girl said with a smile.

Billy was beaming, too, and when asked what the president talked about, replied:

"Oh, he told us a lot of things. He told us about a dog he got from the South Pole—or maybe it was the North Pole—and it was so warm for him here that whenever the iceman came around he used to sit on the cakes of ice."

6 Die When Yacht Sinks Off England

Fowney, England, Aug. 22 (AP).—The twenty-two-ton yacht Islander, wrecked upon the jagged rocks of Lantivet Bay Thursday night in a violent storm which pounded the English South coast, carried Commander Henry Douglas King, prominent member of Parliament, and five other men to death.

Those on shore while the yacht was breaking up believe they heard cries of women and children aboard, but so far as can be learned only men occupied the vessel. Other reports said the bodies of two young children had been washed ashore, but officials stated that was untrue.

ILLINOIS G. O. P. SEEKS HARMONY

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 22 (AP).—A "middle-of-the-road" platform to prevent dissension in party ranks on the prohibition question may be offered to Republicans of Illinois in convention here today. The Democratic state convention Wednesday demanded repeal of all dry laws.

Makers of the platform, during the discussion, favored a plank that would let the referendum in connection with the November election decide the party's attitude on modification or repeal of dry laws.

The extreme wets are prepared, however, to make demands for a repeal plank similar to the one adopted by the Democrats.

Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, candidate for senator, has indicated she would approve permitting the people to decide the prohibition issue for themselves in the fall election rather than making it a campaign problem.

She announced that in her keynote speech she would give the final complete statement of her attitude on the liquor question.

Rockefeller Decides To Improve Estate

Tarrytown, N. Y., Aug. 22 (AP).—John D. Rockefeller, Jr., relieved the unemployment situation here Thursday by placing 200 married men at work on his estate in Pocantico Hills and in the town of Mount Pleasant.

A decision to start now on projects planned for a year and two years hence was reached after an appeal was made to Mr. Rockefeller by Supervisor Marasco, of Mount Pleasant, in behalf of the unemployed.

The 200, it is believed, are virtually guaranteed work during the winter and it is expected additional projects costing more than $1,000,000 will start as soon as the engineering department of the huge estate can plan the work.

Police are seeking Courchene and Charles A. Stein, son of Carl Stein, who heads the contracting company employing Courchene.

A number of down-town streets are in bad condition and all are expected to be repaired before cool weather sets in. While the board of street commissioners had contemplated rebuilding the first block of East Washington and the first block of East Franklin, finances would not permit such action and these streets will be repaired for the time being.

DAGGER

By Mary Dahlberg

SYNOPSIS: Dagger, Marley, spirited young niece of a Texas ranchman, loves two men and loses both. Blaine Howard, the first, is killed on the Western Front in France. Captain John Vanering, war ace, the second, and whom she marries, meets death in an airplane accident. In France, Dagger refuses the love of the Duc de Pontoise, and decides to make a pilgrimage around the world as Howard had done before her. He visited three friends in Africa, India and China, seeking their answers to the riddle of life. She does the same. In Africa Sidi Marut, Arab chief, tells her one should do what he thinks right. Ghulam Buk, Buddhist holy man, says happiness lies in forgetfulness of self. In China, Chang Kai Sho, powerful war lord, tells her that his philosophy is "The strong man succeeds." Chang shows unusual interest in Dagger, and she lingers in his capital out of curiosity.

Chapter 34

AN AMAZING INVITATION
Dagger returned to the hotel that afternoon, brows puckered in speculation—and entered her rooms to receive another surprise. Flowers were everywhere. On a table lay an envelope of heavy Chinese paper, addressed to her in oblique letters that suggested at once Chang's personality and the ideographs of his native tongue.

"Dear Mrs. Vanering," she read. "I am taking the liberty of presenting you with a few trifles to bring you in touch with China. If you permit, I will help you to explore its successes, which are accessible to few Westerners."

"Chang-Kai-Sho," she said. The following evening she was guest of honor at a dinner the Consul gave for her. The Consul met her in the hall and drew her into an anteroom.

"Look here," he began, "Chang got wind of this affair—he knows everything that goes on, of course—and put in an application for an invitation. He's inside now—wants to sit next to you. What shall I do?"

"Are you serious?" she demanded, suspecting the twinkle in his eyes.

"Never more so, but can't help chuckling over it all. He's really a big man, about the biggest in China, and he's acting like a sophomore, off on his first house-party. If it annoys you—"

"Oh, no," denied Dagger. "I can take care of myself. Because, I want some information he can give me."

The Consul regarded her with increased respect.

"Butly for you," he said. "But if he bothers you, just holler. I'll come. Perhaps you aren't aware of it, but Chang has the Oriental attitude toward women."

"Not toward me," she answered. "Or if he has, he'll learn something."

"I bet he will."

And the Consul took her arm, and led her into the reception-room, where the other guests awaited them. Chang easily the center of interest, his giant form towering over all. He was, Dagger was relieved to observe, discreet in his attention, and she marvelled at the innate poise and courtliness of this ex-bandid and son of a peasant. While he talked with her often, he did not ignore the woman on his other side, and also engaged in general conversation but she didn't fail to notice that whenever he turned to her, his voice dropped to a more intimate pitch.

She early made an opportunity to introduce Howard's name into the conversation. Chang replied readily, but it seemed to Dagger that there was a shadow of reserve in his manner.

"A friend I shall ever prize," he said. "He helped me more than any man I have known. He could have anything he wished of me. He is my brother. But—" the broad shoulders lifted—"in the long run his own people were dearer to him."

"Why do you speak of him as if he were still with us?" she asked. Chang's slant eyes studied her.

"And why do you not use the word that is in your mind?" he countered.

"What word?"

"Dead—the word you Westerners fear most."

"I cannot think of him as dead," answered Dagger.

He frowned, his eyes fixed now on the plate in front of him.

"Be not mistaken," he said presently. "Death is not to be avoided—it will come to me; it will come to you. And nothing we can do will avert its touch when it is ready for us. There are but three things in life of which we may be sure. The first is birth; the second is that the strong man succeeds; the third is death."

"You do not speak of love," Dagger reminded him.

"No, for love depends upon a woman—and who can be sure of a woman?"

"Surely, not one who doubts her." His eyes gripped hers once more, almost with an hypnotic force.

"True, and yet—" He switched abruptly into a description of past campaigns.

A second week slipped by. Chang's motor was at her door punctually every morning; her vases were kept filled with flowers from the Tu-chun's gardens. And although she didn't know it, she suspected from the veiled remarks of the foreigners she met, that she was the subject of a great deal of gossip in the city.

The third week of her visit was half-finished, and to tell the truth, she was commencing to worry somewhat of Sung-fu, when she received a second and more amazing invitation from Chang.

"Dear Mrs. Vanering," the block-like characters said. "I have a matter to discuss with you which is of interest to me and may be of interest to you. Will you honor me by being my guest at dinner tonight? I shall ask no others."

Dagger gasped. She had heard many tales of the Tu-chun's Palace, of the intrigue that permeated it, of the bizarre harem of women representing most of the races of the world. Should she thrust herself in the power of a man who was accustomed to follow every whim which occurred to him? Was there a sinister implication in his concluding sentence?

She was tempted to go to the Consul, to loyal, little Mr. Araki; but in the same breath she flung back her head, the old Dagger of the plains, fearless, self-confident, hungry for adventure. No, she'd go, and say nothing to anyone, not even her maid.

She wasn't afraid of Chang. He couldn't be more difficult to manage than a Villista or a Senussi Sheikh. And likewise, she admitted to herself, Chang revealed none of the symptoms of the petty soul who stoops to the flagrantly dishonorable offenses. A thief, he was a great thief, a sensualist, he was too accomplished to savor pleasure in forced embraces.

Fisher Welcomes Legion Delegates

Harrisburg, Aug. 22 (AP).—Governor Fisher in welcoming the delegates of the American Legion here to the 12th annual state convention reminded the legionnaires of the steps being taken by the nations of the world for peace and said he was an advocate of preparedness.

"The best insurance for peace is preparedness for peace," said the governor. He lauded the performance of Pennsylvania troops in the world war. Pennsylvania stands ready, he said, to take its place in the national defense.

Pennsylvania, though imbued with a military spirit, is opposed to a war of aggression, the governor said.

Little Prospects Of Income Tax Cut

Washington, August 22 (AP).—Treasury officials see little prospects for the reduction of one per cent in income taxes which was allowed this year as an emergency measure. Congressional action would be necessary to extend the emergency reduction over another year. Unless action is taken at the short session beginning next December, the old rate would apply.

FIFTEEN YEARS AGO

Reading Professor Accepts Position in Local High School: Prof. Stephen C. Leininger, Reading, has accepted the position of teacher in Manual Training in the Gettysburg High School, and will move here with his wife in the near future. Prof. Leininger takes the position made vacant by the resignation of Prof. Raymond Michener.

Miss Janet Myers, Marion, Franklin county, is the other new teacher in the high school. She will have charge of the sewing, millinery work, etc., in the Domestic Science department, while Miss Anna C. Fox, head of the department, will devote her time entirely to the work of the pupils in the dining room and kitchen. Miss Reba Miller was elected teacher of music for the ensuing year.

In Camp at Dick's Dam: A number of young men from town are in camp along the Conewago creek, just above Dick's Dam. Camp "Sing Sing" is the name they have so appropriately selected for the gathering. Following are the campers:—John Blocher, John Sachs, John Zinn, Dr. Maurice Bender, Rogers Musselman, Joseph Codori, Daniel A. Skelly, Jr., Curtis Sheads, G. Edgar Miller, J. Calvin Hartman, Gettysburg; Charles Garland, Dayton, Ohio; William Calvert, Woodstock, Va.; Duke Berger, Washington, D. C.; Guy Stock, Chef. Dangerfield Mitchell is in charge of the "mess" department.

Wedding: Raffensperger—Carey: H. K. Raffensperger and Miss Anna H. Carey, both of Arendtsville, were united in marriage at the home of the bride at four o'clock Sunday morning. The wedding was a very quiet one, and was a surprise to the many friends of the young couple. Only the immediate family were present at the ceremony, which was performed by the Rev. D. T. Koser. Mr. and Mrs. Raffensperger left immediately on a wedding trip to Baltimore. On their return they will reside at Arendtsville, where Mr. Raffensperger conducts a restaurant.

Outing Party: Many local people have found pleasant recreation along the Conewago creek during the summer months and this morning another party will leave for ten days outing with the colony of campers. The following Gettysburgians leave today: Mrs. Guyon H. Buehler and two sons, Arthur and Edwards, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Storrick, Miss Nina G. Storrick, Miss Mary Storrick, of Carlisle, and Miss Margaret Storrick, of Philadelphia.

Fractured Leg in Fall at Masonic Camp Yesterday: In stepping from a boat landing at the Masonic camp, J. Harry Holtzworth slipped and fell, breaking his right leg just above the ankle. The accident occurred about 10 o'clock Friday morning.

Several of the men who were sitting on the shore near to where the man fell saw the accident and ran to his assistance. They soon discovered that his leg was badly injured, so they carried him to a tent nearby and called for the physicians that happened to be in the camp at the time. Dr. J. R. Dickson, Dr. J. McCrea Dickson, Gettysburg, and Dr. Gettler, Littlestown, were there and they administered treatment to the injured man. The fracture was immediately reduced, and Mr. Holtzworth was given all the possible comforts of the camp.

History of Adams County Written by a York Historian: Prof. George R. Prowell, the York county historian, published an interesting short history of Adams county in a York paper. Extracts from his article follow:

"The early inhabitants of Adams county were Scotch-Irish, Presbyterians, Quakers, Catholics from Maryland, and Germans from the provinces along the River Rhine.

"Adams county came into existence in 1800 by the mandate of Governor Thomas McKean, just as the bells were ringing out the old century which had brought forth on this continent a new nation, and ringing in a new century destined to be the most progressive in the history of the world.

"About the time that a new name was to be selected for the new county west of the Susquehanna River, John Adams, the second president of the United States, with a train of attendants and military escort crossed the present area of York and Adams counties, on his way to become the first president at the new seat of government of the American republic. It was this incident largely that induced the voters to name it in honor of the statesman of Massachusetts, who was then the executive head of the nation.

"About 10 years before, James Gettys had laid out a town which became the future seat of justice of Adams county. He was a typical Scotch Irishman, who settled on what was known as the 'Manor of the Maske,' together with many other enterprising Scotch Irishmen, among whom are the Crawfords, the Blacks, Hamiltons, Reads, Cassatts, McPhersons, Ewings and other family names which have become noted in our nation's history.

"Twice during his term of choice as president George Washington slept on the area now embraced in the battlefield of Gettysburg. "In October, 1794, in company with Alexander Hamilton, he went from Philadelphia as far westward as Bedford to lay plans for quelling the so-called 'whiskey insurrection.' During a beautiful day in October he crossed the mountains and lodged for the night in a stone building, now standing a short distance northwest of Gettysburg. The president arose early next morning, sat on the box seat of the chaise with the driver, in order as he said 'that I might observe the country, which impressed me very much.'"

Family Reunion: At Boyd's, ex-Senator Martin's old home, his family, including the children and grandchildren, held a most delightful reunion on Wednesday. The following were present: Hon. and Mrs. William A. Martin, Alice D. Martin, William B. Martin, Mr. and Mrs. Harry B. Martin, Robert B. Martin, Isabelle L. Martin, Henry B. Martin, Jr., Mary M. Martin, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Cole, Ruth H. Cole, Rosalie A. Cole, Kathryn E. Cole, William F. Cole, Elizabeth M. Cole, Richard M. Cole, the Rev. and Mrs. J. K. Robb, James M. Robb, Mr. and Mrs. Paul A. Martin, William A. Martin, Jr., Roland Martin, the Rev. and Mrs. H. Hall Sharp, Mr. and Mrs. V. B. Hausknecht, Miss Mary V. Cope, Miss Kathleen E. Tate, of Altoona.

BALLADE OF THE SHOWER BATH

When I have done with swat and swat
And counted up my feeble score,
Then comes the time to take the bath
Which waits beyond a swinging door.
Oh, cleansing stream and cooling spray
What matter if my game be sour,
Not even Bobby Jones, I say,
Than I can more enjoy a shower!

Though others tread a straighter path
And make the longest holes in "four."
In golf's refreshing aftermath
There are no blunders to deplore.
Though all my drives have gone astray,
And shown an utter lack of power
No golfer in the world today
Than I can more enjoy a shower.

The nineteenth hole attraction hath
For some whose throats are parched and sore,
But I prefer to cool my wrath Outside as well as in. Therefore The wagers lost I quickly pay
And cry: "Come my triumphal hour
None of you champions, anyway
Than I can more enjoy a shower!"

L'Envoi
Masters and experts as you play!
Golf sharks that fools like me devour,
Not one of you, try as you may,
Than I can more enjoy a shower.

Little Jack Rabbit

By David Cory

OLD MAN WEASEL

Now, let me ponder for a minute.
I must remember how we ended the last story. "I would never do to repeat, nor to omit anything. Goodness, no indeed. Oh, yes, it all comes back to me—the little rabbit had just left Grandmother Magpie. Well, after maybe a thousand and thirteen hops he came to an old sawmill. Gracious me! what a dreadful noise the big saw made as it cut the logs up into boards and shingles. The sound so frightened the little rabbit that he hopped away clipperty clip, with his front paws over his long ears. Yes, sir, he hopped away so fast that he almost bumped into a team of oxen hauling a great log to the mill. Dear me, I hate to think what would have happened had he knocked over one of those patient beasts. I guess the man who was driving them would have said something worse than 'Gee!'"

"I must see where I'm going hereafter," wisely thought the little bunny, and he looked about him. But what he saw made him shiver and shake. There stood Old Man Weasel, grinning from behind a bush.

"Now I've got you!" and out he jumped and caught the poor little rabbit by the left ear and commenced to drag him toward his house. In the open doorway stood Mrs. Weasel with a big carving knife.

"Won't we have a nice rabbit stew!" she chuckled, and she began to sharpen the knife on the stone step. But, three cheers and a tiger! Just then up came the good Policeman Dog. On seeing what was going to happen to the little rabbit, that brave old bow pulled the front doorknob out and threw it plunk! at Old Man Weasel.

"Ouch! Ouch!" yelled that wicked furry robber, lifting both paws to his aching head. Of course, in doing that, he let go of the little bunny's ear. At once that knowing little fellow slipped away, clipperty clip, lipperty lip, and in less than no time he was so far away that he couldn't have found his way back in less than a month of Sundays.

"Gracious me!" he panted, at last, sitting down to rest. Then taking a cabbage sandwich from his knapsack, he commenced a light luncheon. "I may as well eat while I have the time, for there's no telling what may happen next, and maybe if it does I'll never see another chance," and in less than 500 short seconds there wasn't any cabbage to be seen, not a crumb.

Well, maybe there was a crumb, for as the little rabbit hopped away a tiny black ant picked up a little mite of something and carried it off to her hole in the ground.

"And now where shall I go?" questioned the little bunny, but why he should ask himself questions is more than I can explain, for if he

SUNDOWN STORIES

THE CRICKETS' TRIP

By Mary Graham Bonner

"We're going to a concert up in the air," said the Little Black Clock. "Hurry along! I've turned the time ahead and our plane is waiting for us."

"The concert is going to be given in front of the leading air hotel," John and Peggy got into the plane with the Little Black Clock and the Pilot. In hardly any time at all they were up in front of the air hotel and the band was all ready to start.

Many people were sitting around waiting for the concert to begin. The Little Black Clock found seats for John and Peggy and himself.

In a few minutes the music began. It was beautiful. It seemed strange to Peggy to think that they had come up so far and that the sky was still so high above them.

The band was playing a very lovely tune, and had reached a part of the music where they were playing very softly when some little chirping sounds could be heard.

"What can they be?" John whispered to the Little Black Clock. "They sound like crickets," Peggy answered.

The people heard the little chirping sounds and thought they were a part of the pieces of music and that in some way or other this was very modern music even for them.

"I know what happened," the Little Black Clock said. "The crickets probably came along with us when we left the earth and got out of the plane after we landed."

"That must be it," And that was what had happened. Before they left they found the two crickets and took them back to earth with them, for they thought the crickets would like the earth and its trees and shrubs better than this place up in the air.

But Peggy and John and the Little Black Clock thought it was a great joke that the people had thought the chirping of the crickets was some very new kind of music!

Tomorrow—"Wading".

didn't know, how could he truthfully answer himself? Well, anyway, all of a sudden, who should come along but dear Uncle Lucky Leftthindfoot in his Luckymobile. "Come for a ride, Bunnikins!" he shouted, and off they drove right into the next story.

WHAT DOES YOUR MIRROR SAY?

TO MANY WOMEN the mounting birthdays bring a little less beauty, a few more wrinkles, a complexion that has lost its youth and charm. Yet for others, Time seems to stand still.

The difference is often a matter of diet. So many foods lack sufficient roughage or bulk. Without it, constipation is inevitable. Its poisons spread over the whole system, causing ill health and loss of youth.

Today, you can prevent it easily by eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. Two tablespoonfuls daily are guaranteed to prevent and relieve both temporary and recurring constipation. In stubborn cases, eat ALL-BRAN with each meal. This is so much better than taking pills and drugs that may be harmful.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEWS ADAMS

DARK DAYS

TODAY is a dark day in the location upon this globe where I find myself. Yet it is not depressing. Rather do I enjoy the indoors, where comfort is provided and where I may partake of our books and sit with our little companion—the small blue typewriter which is our constant friend.

The response of the keys to our touch, from this little friend, breaks the silence of the room and we feel warm inside as thoughts come and go, or are recorded in simple fashion upon the clean white paper.

Every once in a while a streak of sun creeps in and a golden shadow scampers across the floor and hides in some corner. Then it is mysteriously disappears and great clouds pass over our roof and for a time, rain threatens. But we are snug and dry, and the rain would only add to our pleasure, for we have had a week of glorious beauty, and the rain would but freshen everything about.

There are always more bright days than dark, yet I sometimes think people complain more about the dark days than they praise the bright ones. Of what strange cast is this human nature of ours?

The older we grow, the mellow does all life become. We are not so peppy and irritable at any rate. And though youth has gone its way, there is this compensation to advancing years—in them, we find ourselves in truer fashion. The background of our lives glows like lovely evenings that are so peaceful and restful, especially when we have learned the quiet philosophy of acceptance and courage.

Life's values are all rightly placed. It is up to us to find them and to appraise them as rightly as we know. In the sifting, perhaps, our little errors and blunders will become lost to view and to memory.

These dark days help us gather much that has fallen by the way that we should have gathered and treasured. During all these many days that come to us, it is not what they are in themselves, but what we see in them, and what we take out from them, and make our own, that measures the worth that we own.

CHARGED WITH PLOT TO KILL FLORIDA GOVERNOR

Frank Ralls (left), Fred O. Eberhardt (center), Tallahassee publisher, and Henry Halsema, Jacksonville real estate operator, were named in a warrant issued in Jacksonville charging conspiracy to assassinate Gov. Doyle E. Carlton of Florida. Ralls was a former political campaigner for Carlton.

SPORT
SLANTS

By Alan Gould

Another great mystery seems to involve the career of Rogers Horn-sby. If the suspicions of the boys are well-founded, the Rajah, now serving his fourth National league club, may be attached to a fifth by next season.

Hornsby won the $1000 prize for being the league's most valuable player in 1929, when he helped the Cubs capture the pennant, but he has been of little service to the team this year. The famous second baseman broke his ankle in May and was on crutches for a month.

Recently, however, Hornsby has returned to uniform and practice—but not to the lineup.

The mystery is that the Rajah, despite his potent warclub, has not even been used as a pinch-hitter, though able to get around all right under his own power.

So it is the whispers are heard that Hornsby is, strangely, "in bad again." The mysterious circumstances under which he left the Giants after one year's play have never been explained. He was traded to New York by St. Louis after leading the Cardinals to their first pennant and world's series victory.

If Johnny Goodman of Omaha isn't the second ranking American amateur golfer right now, he is pretty close to it. His claim isn't based altogether on the fact that he is the only man to beat Bobby Jones in the last two years of championship competition.

Goodman has proved a fine medal as well as match player. He was the only amateur to give Jones a contest of any kind in the National Open at Interlachen, finishing well ahead of George Von Elm and Harrison (Jimmy) Johnston, the amateur champion. In the St. Paul $10,000 Open, Goodman again bob-bed up among the leaders and was the top amateur with a fine 72-hole total of 289. Again he showed the way to Johnston.

On the basis of this work, Goodman should be "seeded" well toward the top in the amateur championship play at Merion.

Speaking of the shake-ups, here's the entry of Jay Vessels from the raspberry country:

With the current baseball season
one month old Mike Kelley, manager and part owner of the Minneapolis American Association club, found his team far in the cellar.
The fans were staying away from the park and the sports scribes were hollering for a new team.

That's what Kelley gave them.
He cleaned house from top to bottom. By trades and purchases he got an entirely new infield, three new outfielders and two new pitchers. Only the catching staff was retained.

When he began the team was 20 games out of the first division. The Millers began a spurt, hurdled the second division teams and wound up in fourth place and for a time challenged the league leaders. They still are going strong.

Big Bill Tilden never before has been so aroused by a tennis gallery as to default his match and walk off the courts, as he did against the sharpshooting Cliff Sutter at Rye, N. Y.

In his prime, in fact, Tilden relished the reactions of spectators, if he did not actually encourage demonstrations. In one of his books, the American champion wrote:

"... the player owes the gallery as much as an actor owes an audience."

During the East-West matches at Forest Hills in 1922, Tilden and Richards were playing Johnston and Davis in the doubles. Tilden, then as now, had a habit of wearing a sweater during the first few games of a match. The gallery began to call:

"Take off your sweater, Bill."

Mischievously, Bill kept it on.
The match went to five sets.

Davis's service, particularly severe, aced Tilden. The crowd yelled.
Tilden smiled. Richards won his point. Again Davis aced Tilden on the service. The crowd jeered and Tilden enjoyed it, sending Davis's next service back for a severe placement. The crowd kept riding Tilden for the rest of the match which he and Richards won after a long deuce battle.

"Didn't all that 'horsing' bother you?" he was asked afterward.

"No, I had a swell time," he replied. "And so did they. I don't mind that."

Eight years later, at Rye, Tilden, trailing at 1-6, 0-4, turned to the umpire, remarked: "I can't stand this any longer," cast a baleful look at the jeering spectators, forfeited his match to Sutter, and limped from the scene.

Home Run records are in the process of being bounced all over the professional baseball premises. The bouncing is not confined altogether to the major leagues.

Joe Hauser, who did a lot of slugging for Connie Mack before he broke a leg four years ago, has shattered the former International League record of 44 homers by a wide margin. In the cleanup position for Baltimore, Joe had collected around 55 circuit clouts by the middle of August.

The all-time record in fast company has been 60. The year before he joined the Yankees, Tony Lazzeri reached this figure in the Pacific Coast league, playing half the time in the rarified atmosphere of Salt Lake City, boom town for the hitters. Ruth compiled his major league record in 1927 in 154 games.

Meanwhile, the American Association record of 42, made by Bunny Brief of Kansas City in 1921, has been attacked with a great vehemence by the veteran Nick Culp of the Minneapolis club. He was around the 40 mark in mid-August and going strong.

Strange as it may seem, a minor league home run record of 45 was set in 1895 by Perry Werden of the Minneapolis team and stood for 39 years. And Moose Clabaugh hit 62 in 1926 in the East Texas League, a class "D" circuit.

Electrons Travel
At Swift Speed

New York (AP).—Electrons, those minute invisible components of current flowing in a radio tube, travel at a fast clip.

Figures in the millions are required to give even an approximate indication of their rate of speed.
The smallest heat wave of electricity, a milliamper of current on the plate or collecting agency of the tube causes more than six thousand million millions of electrons to leave the heated filament per second.

With a screen grid tube, the electronic issue per second runs around 24,000,000,000,000,000. In the power output -45 type the figure goes to 200 thousand million millions.

3 miles east of Gettysburg and 7 miles west of New

KING OF POLOIs Only 10-Goal Polo Player
In World; Heads Defense.

By Alan Gould

New York (AP).—The impression has prevailed in some quarters that Thomas Hitchcock, Jr., cut his teeth on a polo mallet and that the first real tumble of his childhood days was off the back of a pony.

In the galloping sport today, Hitchcock occupies a position more commanding even than Bobby Jones in golf, Babe Ruth in baseball, Paavo Nurmi in foot-racing or Helen Wills in tennis.

Star on all Teams

Since the war, Hitchcock has been a star on every American international polo team.

This year, at the age of 30, Hitchcock not only ranks as the only ten-goal polo player in the world but as chairman of the Defense Committee and captain of the American forces on the field.

He is in complete command of the cup defense against England's formidable challenge in the series starting at Meadow Brook Sept. 6.

Adventure has always beckoned to the dashing Tommy. At the age of 17 he enlisted in the Army air service and went to France. He was shot down behind the German lines, taken prisoner but escaped.

Health Injured

For a time, partly as a result of his war experiences, Hitchcock's health was not of the best. Yet it was difficult to keep him out of the saddle when he was near a polo field or when an important match was impending. In 1924, stimulants were needed to keep him going in the cup matches with England.

Tommy was 13 when he played his first real polo, 16 when he appeared in tournament play for the first time with the team that won both the National junior and senior time with the team that won both the National junior and senior championships at Narragansett Pier, R. I.

He played abroad, in England and on the Riviera, in 1920, and in 1924 took over an Olympic team which lost to the Argentines in the final.

Daring on Horses

A picturesque, daring figure on horseback, Hitchcock has always caught the crowd's fancy by the Ruthian power in his drives, many of them carrying fully 100 yards.

Jeff Potlocks says he reckons he will have to stay at home a while now, as the calf chewed up his shirt on the clothes line, the pup took his hat under the house, and the mice built a nest in his Sunday shoes.

he said everything seemed to be all

The Law of Compensation
Is Working Again!

Last year this same old law struck a body blow to thousands of investors and shook the entire economic structure of the nation.

For several years business had been on a rampage . . . running to high finance and unassimilated production brought on largely by an effort on the part of too many individuals trying to get "something for nothing" through unintelligent speculation.

What happened was inevitable . . .

The law of compensation decrees that there can be no lasting reward except for "work" or "service rendered".

It is well that when the blow struck, it struck hard. It woke up business to its precarious condition and the quick necessity for pulling itself together and facing about.

Today we believe the law of compensation is working again—not penalizing—but rewarding.

We believe that business is on the mend—not entirely out of the woods, but with its feet set in the right direction.

What is needed now is to hew to the line and stick to the job with a determination not to chase
"easy-money" rainbows.

We are always glad to co-operate with anyone operating on that code.
